DEDICATION

Dedication

TO

COLONEL OLIVER JAMES BOND

WHOSE UNTIRING EFFORTS OF HALF A CENTURY IN BUILDING A BIGGER AND BETTER CITADEL, AND WHOSE LOYAL DEVOTION HAVE WON FOR HIM THE DEEPEST ADMIRATION AND GRATITUDE ON THE PART OF EACH MEMBER OF CORPS. WE DEDICATE THIS

THE 1933 SPHINX

DEDICATION

THE MEMORY, THAT TREASURE HOUSE OF THE MIND, IS SO AFFECTED BY TIME THAT EVEN THE MOST VIVID RECOLLECTIONS ARE, IN EFFECT, AGED, MELLOWED, AND DIM.

THIS, THE THIRTY-THIRD VOLUME OF THE SPHINX, WHOSE CONTENTS ARE INVULNERABLE TO THE DESTRUCTIVE ATTACKS OF TIME, WILL, THROUGHOUT THE YEARS TO COME, GIVE A CLEAR PICTURE OF CADET LIFE AS WE LIVE IT.

TOGETHER. THEY WILL CONTINUE TO RECALL HARMONIOUSLY THE SORROWS AND JOYS OF YESTER-DAY.

Senior Class History

"Seniors! Center! March!"—and we move forward in a long, thin line; majors, captains, privates no longer, but all Seniors, for "The first shall be last, and the last shall be first!" And there in the reviewing line together as we watch the rest of the corps go by in a long salute, our thoughts roll slowly back to the first of these parades we ever saw, and on beyond that to our first frightened days as "rats" under the "old régime."

That day of awe in September, '29! Its bewilderment is still vividly with us: how we were rushed from one place to another; from the quadrangle of those strange roofless barracks to be matriculated at the President's office, then to pay Major Tiller (n.b., we've been paying him ever since), then to the Q. M. to draw shirts two sizes larger and trousers two sizes smaller than the ones we were measured for early in the summer and a cap we didn't quite know how to wear. Then back to the everlasting "quad." We will all swear yet that we spent twelve hours of that first day standing at attention, doing "right face," doing "left face," doing "bout face," atoniq was the properties of the strains of forbidden music. Oh well, we were tired anyway. But came Sunday morning and we were collected and herded out of barracks and over to the hospital where we were all stripped to a point where laddies would have been decidedly embarrassed and were run through a line of internes to be inspected hide, bair, and toe nails.

Monday saw the beginning of classes and the straightening out process (literally, in many cases) for recruits. It was during that memorable first week that we acquired our "big brothers" and learned the aftitudes of true brotherliness.

Things rocked along evenly and otherwise, and we gradually began to learn what we could do and what we could not do; what we had to do and what we could get out of; when to serve confinements and when not to. Then came our first football game, when Red Whittington ran wild over Newberry, and we subsequently ran wild over "rat" barracks. Faint rumors began to drift down to us, from our lords and masters, of Orangeburg and the Carolina game, and startlingly soon the great event was upon us. We entrained and encarred hilariously for the game and the fair, a high-spirited crew if there ever was one. There are some who would write down that game on the sadder pages of Citadel history, but they are not among our number. True, a defeat is a defeat; but by the same reasoning other things are also other things, and we feel forced to count the scales evenly balanced.

After moping over the Thanksgiving Hop from the outside, and reveling in the music Jan Garber gave us for the Christmas dances, we departed for the Christmas holidays and returned, each with his own proudly exaggerated tales, only to be humbled by some sophisticated Sophomore on our return. Followed exams. Then came the Senior Hop and all the impressive glory of the grand march. By this time we had begun to get the swing of the real "Citadel Spirit." We saw a manifestation of that spirit in the first College of Charleston basketball game, and in the last game of the series we saw it overflow when the College over-enthusiasts tolled their bell louder than it had ever been tolled before-or has ever been tolled since. Treading on the heels of the basketball season came the boxing season and the feats of Polk Skelton, John Carlisle, and Charlie Holland, who overwhelmed all opposition, even to Florida, which won the Southern Conference Championship that year. Then came dress parades, and with dress parades came the gnats. But the spring season also meant our first introduction to Folly and the Island at the Picnic Hop. The days that followed so swiftly are days that need no elaborate tales to call them back to us. Mere suggestion will do: Skelton, Holmes and Williams at retreat; the love of Joe O'Neale and Runt Gray for "zip"; the terrorism of the night raiders of "F" Company; silk underwear at retreat; and we might as well wind up by mentioning a few hundred water fights. Commencement, with its parades, drills, dances, addresses, and fond parents, and without its reveille formations, passed and left us with the satisfying prospect of becoming haughty Sophomores on our return in September.

After a summer as civilians, we foregathered again to begin our upstart days. Oh, it was great to be a corporal! But by the time Orangeburg came due again we had begun to "snap out of it" and to acquire that humbleness which was suited to our lowly state. We had actually found out that Senior privates did not have to be told how to do "squads right."

Despite our losing to Carolina again we felt that the count was somewhat evened when we beat V. M. I. 7-6 at a colorful Homecoming Day game. After football season and our first Thanksgiving Hop, the days began to melt into one another, and soon we were packing feverishly for the Christmas holidays again. It was not long after we returned from this furlough that we began to hear rumors of a "university" on the campus. Certainly some of the Seniors had strange tales to tell at the breakfast table. These tales will probably never be believed by any but ourselves and some of the next year's class, but that is neither here nor there. Like the Sphinx, it is our part merely to smile faintly and to remember. For some memories are sweet.

That year also the basketball season bad a grand finale. The cadet corps, according to reports, entrenched themselves behind massive fortifications at the south gate to the campus and engaged the whole College of Charleston student body, the police force, the fire department, and a regiment of national guard in a bloody battle. It was with much slaughter that the blood-thirsty cadets repulsed the invading hosts. The vivid and glowing account of Kid Dreher, famous war correspondent assigned to the story, will remain with us forever as a terrible tale of carnage and epic daring.

As the Folly season came around again the Seniors appeared in their white uniforms and made themselves the "snooty" envy of the entire corps. And the "university" students increased in numbers and in the ability to tell amazing tales.

At this time, through the unselfish devotion of Colonel Bond, there came about a great benefit to The Citadel, Colonel Bond persuaded the Board of Visitors to ask General Charles P. Summerall, former Chief of Staff of the United States Army and war-time commander of the First Division of the A. E. F., to take over the presidency of The Citadel, which he himself offered to relinquish for the offices of Dean and Head of the Department of Mathematics. General Summerall retired from the army in the spring of 1931 and agreed to accept the new post at the opening of The Citadel in the fall.

Spring did her conventional merry tripping on toward commencement, being hastened on her way by the Easter and Picnic Hops and by days of sunshine both on the roof and at Folly. Commencement week, more exams, and then summer furlough once more.

Back again as Juniors, but this time under another régime. The old days automatically became a memory as we settled down grimly to the task of dodging sandbags. But along with the sandbags came several dearly cherished privileges—white uniforms for the whole corps, week-end leaves for Juniors and Seniors, cotton shirts, football trips, and the abolition of reveille. The real high spot of our football season that year was not the Carolina game, but the V. M. I. trip. Most of us will always consider that great 13-13 tie the most exciting game of football ever played by a Bull Dog eleven. As members of the Junior and Senior platoons we made trips to Florence and Orangeburg and saw Jennings and Whitington subdue the Clemson Tigers and bow to the Gamecocks only after classic attempts to stop Earl Clary. Once more the football season was climaxed by the Thanksgiving Hop and once more the days passed servely until Christmas. Soon after our return from this short respite, we passed (?) another milestone in the form of another bunch of mid-terms. Somehow we did not have the stimulation of another encounter with the College to top off the basketball season. But maybe that was due to the fact that we beat them vstraight games.

In the natural course of events, Spring followed Winter again that year, and Spring, in the cadet course of events, again meant Folly, this time with the added enjoyment of white uniforms and occasional week-end leaves. It was good to lie in the sun and—well, just to lie in the sun, then.

This year, besides robins and love, gentle Spring brought Tuesday dress parades in her train. First one abstallion and then the other moved obediently to the "hog-calling" of Messrs, Daniel and Duckett. The end of that year saw an honor unique in our history conferred upon Major Rinearson. The artillery battalion asked permission to honor its departing commander with a parade. Only he and we can appreciate the whole story fully. It is another of those things which it is sweet to remember. Commencement held for us a greater meaning than it had held before. The next year was ours to wear the crowns of glory; ours to wield the powered scepter; ours to go on leave Sunday nights; ours to dance the Senior "no-breaks."

Guy Lombardo ushered in our Senior year with a dance at Folly pier—a dance that was a dance right. Our next hig thrill came when we walked into the guard room and signed out on our first Senior leave. Things promised well for the artillery again our Senior year; but a cog slipped somewhere, and the infantry got into Murray and refused to be run out. However, as soon as the widespread griping began to subside, the football season started, and things looked pretty good for our team of fighting midgets. Again at Orangeburg, Columbia and Spartanburg the precise step of drill platoons enlivened the balves. One high spot for us at this time was the trip to the state fair and the annual Tiger-Gamecock scrap. It was our privilege this year.

When time for the Christmas Hop blew in, no orchestra blew with it, and the Bull Dogs were rushed in as a last-minute substitute. To their everlasting credit, they were real hop caliber. After coming back from Christmas furlough there was only a time of waiting until we passed the last milestone remaining between us and the final exams. The finish line was not far ahead.

Then came the climax of our four years at The Citadel, the Senior Hop. We can say nothing more of it than that it is another of those things that it is sweet to remember; more than sweet for many of us.

Then the dragon of calisthenics reared its ugly head one Monday morning at six o'clock and seemed to like the campus so much that it made a habit of reappearing. That was about the only thing, by the way, that Pathe and Universal didn't shoot when they came down to take pictures of us little kaydets. And again time drifted on until commencement. OUR Commencement this time.

The last of that long line of cadets has passed us, and one thought comes to each of us. Kipling has expressed it best:

"I have caten your bread and salt,
I have drunk your water and wine,
The deaths that ye died
I have watched beside
And the lives that ye lived were mine."

Junior Class History

Just as the stock market crashed in the autumn of '29, so crashed the conceit and egotism of high-school-seniors-that-were in the fall of '30. The day was September 13, 1930. The sun was hot, the sky was blue. It was a day never to be forgotten by two hundred and thirty Freshmen enrolled at The Citadel. The issuing of uniforms, the matriculation, the first few hours of drill, formed lasting impressions on the minds of all of us. We were from then on determined to do our best to sustain the high standards of our Alma Mater.

The first week passed by, all Freshmen were for the first time allowed to go on leave in the uniform of a cadet. Already formed friendships grew more real and comprehensive as they were further emented by companionship on leave as well as at school. Within a few weeks, we were allowed to attend our first Citadel social function; to be sure, we had been coached in the correct conduct of a cadet. It was a "Messhall," and gave us all, Freshmen that we were, an opportunity to meet the fair young ladies of the city. Dressed in field uniform at a dance; but wholly unconscious of it, and enjoying it to the utmost—that was our experience. But the academic and military side of our life were far from being neglected. Indeed we were ceaselessly drilled in certain branches of science and tactics until even we Freshmen amassed some glimmering knowledge of military regulations concerning the school of the soldier. We were learning, also, thanks to tircless professors, a little of "trig," college algebra, English and other first-year college courses.

While we were almost totally unaware that a football team had been practicing all the time we had been getting accustomed to the life at a military school, we were brought suddenly to a realization of it when the Bull Dogs soundly trounced Erskine in the first varsity game of our college career. Incited by the cheer leaders and by the other upperclassmen around us, we began to grasp the fullness of the meaning of that "fighting Bull Dog Spirit," which "college night." had proposed to instill in us. Weeks passed by, and finally, we witnessed our first homecoming day. The Bull Dogs, before a stadium-filled crowd of ten thousand people, defeated the Flying Squadron of V. M. I. by sheer courage and determination, to end a perfect day.

Amid the troubles and tribulations, we did not even realize that Christmas holidays were going to be given, until we were informed that we might attend the Christmas Hop, provided we got a full dress uniform. At the hop, we experienced the thrill that comes to all cadets when attending their first formal hop. The holidays, beginning the day after, passed rapidly, and soon we were within the grey walls of our Alma Mater again. We were presented with seemingly insurmountable obstacles in the form of the mid-year exams; but with the aid of a little cramming and our previous knowledge, they were conquered.

THE JUNIOR CLASS

We had now passed the first milestone in our college career, and more than a few of us had reflected with pride upon our accomplishments so tar. We had contributed a freshman football team, members to the basketball team; we had done our best to uphold our college tradition and standards. We entered upon the next semester with the firm resolve to even surpass our first semester accomplishments.

After much drill and instruction we took part in our first dress parade on the first Friday after Washington's birthday anniversary. Basketball games, baseball games, boxing meets with the great Carlisle knocking them cold, all helped us to forget our worries for a while. Messhalls, brilliant hops with wonderful music conspired to outdo other functions of like nature. As the gnats began to bite on the later dress parades we realized that our time as "recruits" at The Citadel was fast drawing to a close. Before many weeks we witnessed the departure of our Senior class, with fitting Commencement exercises in Alumni Hall. Our first year was over.

The news that General Charles P. Summerall was to become our president in the fall of '31 placed a new significance and recognition upon The Citadel. The summer quickly came and passed, and for the second time, we came to the grey barracks in the autumn, but this time as all powerful Sophomores. The 'new regime' was fast brought into action and we began to feel the effects of it. Things began to click. New army officers had arrived. Sobpomores were no longer the rulers of Freshmen, and were not filled with dignity and responsibility. In this way began our life in our second year of attendance. During the year we had the good fortune to be able to attend football games, basketball games, etc. The Hops were wonderful and our sphere of social activity centered around these formal functions. Dress parades, excursions to Folly Beach, the inauguration of week-end leave, all made us realize that one more year was drawing to a close. Soon we were witnessing the departure of another class which helped train us; and were looking forward to the next year, when we would enter the institution as Juniors.

After three short months' vacation, we were again on our way to The Military College of South Carolina. Upon our shoulders rested the responsibilities of being men who would show, during the next summer, those qualities at camp which make a Citadel man an outstanding individual in any line of duty. Consequently, we approached the year with determination to do our best. Things happened much as during the preceding year, football victories for which we could justly be proud, an excellent basketball team, and other outstanding athletic achievements. Coupled with these, there has been staged so far, a series of excellent dances, both on the campus and in the city, which have been thoroughly enjoyed by the corps.

Now we are on the eve of the end of our Junior year. Three years at The Citadel, three years of amassing learning in order that we may be more successful in the world of tomorrow. Taken as a whole, we have been lucky and successful in our search for learning. Although many of our comrades have fallen by the wayside because of great difficulties of many kinds, we who have stood the gaff are a rather large part of the Freshman class which entered in the fall of '30, and we are nawre of a deep feeling of true fraternity which will last forever. We have learned the lessons of experience together. We look forward to summer camp our Senior year, and all the honor and responsibility that comes from being "a" true Citadel man.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JOHN W. LANG

Commandant of Cadets

Major E. V. Villaret

MAJOR P. L. RANSOM

MAJOR E. V. VILLARET Coast Artillery, U. S. A.

Coming to us from the Ecole Superieure de Guerre at Paris, France, Major Villaret became head of the Artillery unit at The Citadel this year. Under his direction many improvements have been made in both units, especially in full dress parades and ceremonies. In our short acquaintance, he has earned the respect, esteem, and admiration of the entire Corps.

MAJOR P. L. RANSOM
Infantry, U. S. A.

As head of the Infantry unit for the past two years. Major Ransom has proved himself a capable instructor, a devoted friend of each cadet, and a loyal Citadel man. Being one of America's most distinguished officers of the World War, he was rewarded for his gallantry in action, and bears an enviable record of efficiency and accomplishment.

Richardson Rifles, so named to commemorate South Carolina's former Governor Richardson who, during his life did so much for the betterment of The Citadel, is the (crack) drill company of the college. This company is composed of two platoons made up of members from the two upper classes who have shown outstanding ability in close order drill; and it is an honor to be selected as a member of this organization. James J. Meyers, of New Orleans, La., was elected to drill this company and succeeded in putting on three excellent exhibitions, namely, between the halves of the Wolford-Citadel game in Spartanburg, the Furman game in Orangeburg, and the Davidson-Citadel game in Charleston.

The Senior Platoon, Summeral Guards, was named after that great soldier and leader, General Charles P. Summerall, the beloved president of The Citadel. It was commanded by Ehrlich Lanier Chipley, of Paterson, N. J.

The Junior Platoon. Lang Grenadiers, named after The Citadel's loyal commandant, whose high moral standards have made our school so well known, was commanded by Malcom Curtis Booth, of Montgomery, Ala.

GRESSETE. Coach

KAMINER, W. O., Manager

Football

Starting the season with green, inexperienced men and the lack of sufficient material, Coach Gressette soon developed the Bull Dogs into a fighting team. Most of the sports writers and quite a few coaches in their pre-season dope predicted that The Citadel would be lucky if they won a single game. Not only was this prophesy upset, but the Blue and White had a most successful season, even though they won only four out of nine games. Led by their captain and All-State quarterback, "Leaping Larkin" Jennings, they fought their heavier opponents to a standstill and always lived up to the adage, "Win or lose, they fight!"

Opening the season with the "Flying Fleet" from Erskine, the Bull Dogs contributed their first upset to predictions and defeated their heavier opponents 19 to 0. After getting off to a bad start in the first few minutes of the game, the team came back with a rush and drove the powerful Seceders into their own territory and kept them there for the remainder of the first half. The first two quarters were mainly a punting duel with The Citadel lacking the final punch to deliver a score. Denied their tally during the first half, the Blue and White could not be stopped in the third quarter and on a beautiful 35-yard pass from Jennings to Quarterman, they drew the first blood and scored six points, the placement being blocked. Receiving the kick-off, the Flying Fleet made a determined effort to score and plunged and passed the ball to the Bull Dog's 5-yard line. After two unsuccessful plunges, a pass was intercepted by Jennings and the ball was quickly kicked to safety, ending the Erskine threat. The Bull Dogs again broke loose in the fourth quarter and pushed across two arakers, making the final score 19 to 0. It was a glorious way for a team to begin a season and brought joy to the hearts of every one and especially Coach Gressette. King, Quarterman and Jennings were the outstanding stars for The Citadel, but all the team played wonderful football.

Two weeks later the Bull Dogs downed the powerful V. M. I. team from Lexington. In the first quarter, V. M. I. plainly had the advantage, driving the ball deep into the Buck's territory but losing its chance to score on a fumble. In the second quarter, Ed Mitchell, center, broke through the V. M. I. forward wall twice to block punts—both being turned into touchdowns for the Blue and White. The Squadron immediately fell back on passes and used them to such good advantage that they scored a touchdown and made the count I 2 to 6 by the end of the half. The second half belonged completely to The Citadel. With the aid of the long kicks by King, one for eighty yards, blocked punts, passes, and nice gains by Jennings, the ball was always in V. M. I. territory and the Bull Dogs missed two touchdowns by inches. Only in the last few minutes did V. M. I. threaten again, but the game was over before they had gone far. The majority of the credit for this game belongs to the line, whose great defense kept the Squadron from scoring.

With rain falling throughout the game and slowing up both teams, the Bull Dogs lost to the 'Gators after playing them to a standstill in the first half. Florida scored in the first period on a fumble, but in the second quarter, Faulkner, sophomore back, intercepted a 'Gator pass and raced 75 yards to a touchdown. A goal tied the score at 7 to 7. The defense weakened in the last half and allowed Florida to make three touchdowns, thus ending the game to the score of 27 to 7. The Blue and White suffered a severe blow in the third quarter when Jeff Clark, star end, who had been playing a wonderful game, fell due to the rain-soaked field and broke his leg.

The Bull Dogs contributed another of their upsets to pre-game dope in defeating the powerful Davidson team. Neither team was able to gain in the first few minutes and there were many exchanges of punts. An 85-yard boot by King placed the ball deep in enemy territory and when Davidson attempted to kick to safety. Jennings returned the punt 48 yards for a touchdown and then kicked the extra point. The Bull Dogs threatened again in the second quarter but were unable to tally. During the last half, The Citadel was mainly on defense and stopped all the Wildcats' threats, except the last one when Davidson scored on a pass. The kick for the point was blocked and thus the Cadets won a hard-fought game by a margin of one point.

Entering the field of battle only five days after their game with Davidson, the Blue and White went down in defeat before the powerful Furman team. Without a single substitution in the first half, the fighting Bull Dogs managed to hold the Baptists scoreless, but in the last period the enemy's offense and unlimited reserve had their effect and they made three touchdowns. The Hurricane pushed the pigskin deep into Citadel territory time and time again during the first half: but the Cadets, fighting with their backs to the wall, succeeded in holding them. In the third quarter they made two more touchdowns, one on a drive and the other on an intercepted pass. Light and handicapped by the lack of reserves it was only the spirit of the Blue and White team which held the score as low as it was.

The strain of five straight games against heavier teams telling on them. the Bull Dogs lost to Clemson on Homecoming Day in a drizzling rain before a large crowd. The Tigers were predominant in the first half of the contest, but The Citadel came back in the last half of the game, making many threats. They succeeded however in making only one score. In the first half Clemson made three touchdowns, two on long drives and the other as the result of a fumble. In the third quarter the Bull Dogs twice placed the ball within scoring distance, once on a 40-yard run by Jennings and the other on a long pass to Quarterman; but could not get it across the last white line. In the last quarter, Suhrstedt recovered a Clemson fumble for the Cadet's only score. Jennings got away for three more long runs—each for twenty-five yards or more, but the Blue and White lacked the power to turn their chances into points. Again it was the old story of a few light men unable to withstand the continuous grind against heavier, and more numerous opponents.

After holding P. C. scoreless during the first half, the worn Bull Dogs collapsed in the last half and the Blue Stockings rolled up four touchdowns. Both teams played conservative football during the first half and never threatened to score. In the third quarter Jennings got away for a long run, but the ball could not be carried across. P. C. retaliated by recovering a fumble and scoring a touchdown. King, Citadel end, was injured and had to be removed from the game, this depriving the Cadets of their best punter. In the last quarter the Blue Stockings crossed the goal three times, once on a drive, another the result of a blocked punt, and the third on an intercepted pass. The Cadets were outweighed twelve pounds to the man, but they really lacked vitality and energy which had been sapped by their hard schedule.

Fighting desperately the Bull Dogs lost to the heavier Gamecocks, led by the elusive Clary. The Bull Dogs threatened in the first quarter when Jennings and Symmes took the ball to the 17-yard line but the Carolina wall proved too strong. In the second period Clary led a drive which resulted in a score and his first touchdown of the season. The Gamecocks scored again in the third quarter on a pass, and in the last Clary once more carried the oval across. The entire team played well and hard but the Birds were too heavy and too powerful.

In the closing game of the season at Spartanburg, the Bull Dogs defeated the Wofford Terriers 13 to 0. During the entire first three periods both teams remained in a scoreless deadlock, and the contest was mainly a punting duel between King of The Citadel and Bouknight of Wofford. The Methodist threatened once in the third quarter, but failed to penetrate beyond the 30-yard line. In the last period, Jennings got away for a 35-yard run to place the ball on the one-yard stripe where Symmes took it over on fourth down. A ten-yard pass, from Jennings to Quarterman, was completed and the latter raced 50 yards across the goal, but the play was called back because the Bull Dogs were offside. A few minutes later the Blue and White captain broke loose for a 45-yard gain and another tally, this time making the extra point.

Seven seniors, McCraw, Mitchell, King, Jennings, Arnold, Crosby and Smith, H. A., will be lost by graduation and it will be hard to replace them. Next year's team will be led by Captain Jake Ogilvie, tackle, and alternate-captain, Charlie Quarterman, halfback.

On the first day of September, 1932, a large group of enthusiastic young hopefuls turned out for their first football practice at their new Alima Mater. Head Coach Ephie Seabrook, who has long been a prominent figure in football at The Citadel, undertook the very difficult task of the instruction of this group of athletes. In his job of conditioning these men, eradicating the football systems they had learned in high school, and teaching the system used by Coseh Gressette, Ephie was ably assisted by Gene Clark, who was also an outstanding athlete at The Citadel. Basketball Resume

From a standpoint of games won and lost, the 1933 basketball season can not be considered successful; but when we look into each game, we see evidence everywhere of that old "Bull Dog Spirit." which is all that really matters.

Our team began its season with the invasion of the Marine Barracks at Parris Island. Here we find the old saying of "dog eat dog" holding true for we won and lost and they lost and won. After this skirmish the Cadets journeyed to Savannah where they met the athletes of the Jewish Alliance. Everything considered, they overcame us body and soul, although the score showed only a few points difference. Our team then returned to Charleston to attend classes, to parade, to serve confinements, and finally to go to bed to a well-earned rest.

Our next game was at home with Wofford. This game proved to be a thriller for Wofford, although among the first competitors for the state title, managed to squeeze out by a victory of a single point. Our "bucks" were badly beaten the following week by Newberry. Then the next week-end we lost to Erskine.

Early in February, hoping to change our luck, the Cadets embarked in a Lincoln and a Ford on an upstate conquest. Our first game with Carolina proved to be "the game" of the trip. Here we met the much-heralded quintet of the university. It was a great surprise to every one when our team put up such a magnificent battle and held Carolina until the last few minutes of play to a few points, only to lose by a margin of twenty points. This score is not indicative at all of the game played. From Carolina we traveled to Newberry, where a certain Yankee, with his long shots, put our team to route worse than Grant did Lee. We slipped into Erskine on the ice to a bad defeat. Thence to P. C., where we put that small team to flight. From P. C. we traveled to Wofford and Furman and were beaten in both places.

Returning again to Charleston we played Furman and lost, but on the following week-end there began the annual battle with the College of Charleston. The results of these games and the type of basketball played were more than enough to make up for all defeats of the season. Thus ended the 1933 season.

The squad was composed of H. A. Smith, C. R. Dial, G. C. Brown, Quarterman, Suhrstedt, Pender McAllister, P. D. Boneta, Mize, Marchant, Dupre, E. B. Hodges and Mathis, manager. Suhrstedt was forced out of play after the Furman game because of injuries received in that game. Of these men Smith, Dial and Brown will be lost by graduation, but with those remaining and members of the present freshman team, the prospects for the future are bright.

The 1932 Bull Dog racqueteers, led by Jim Duckett, encountered stiff opposition throughout the season and managed to climb into the win column only once while losing four matches.

Furman defeated the Blue and White twice, both times with every match hard fonght; Carolina also took the Bull Dogs in another close match; Wofford put up a game fight, but went down as the Cadets won their only team match of the season, with Davidson taking the long end of a match played on North Carolina soil.

The season finds four lettermen back in the fold and some strong material to fight for the other places on the team. Bolby Dial, outstanding player on the team for two years, will captain the 1933 team, and other lettermen back for the tryout are: Jenkins, E. D., Holliday, and Fain.

MISS MARY MCNEIL, Sponsor

For the first time in several years a fencing team has made its appearance again at The Citadel. Although seriously handicapped by the lack of experienced fencers, the team made notable progress and the prospects for the next year are promising.

The Citadel opened its season against Rollins College, and after a hotly contested match, lost to its more experienced opponent. The team went to Florida where it was defeated by the University of Florida's team in Gainesville, and once again by Rollins at Winter Park. Although this trip resulted in no victories it did show that The Citadel had made a decided improvement since the opening of the season. It is probable that the team will make a creditable showing in the future matches.

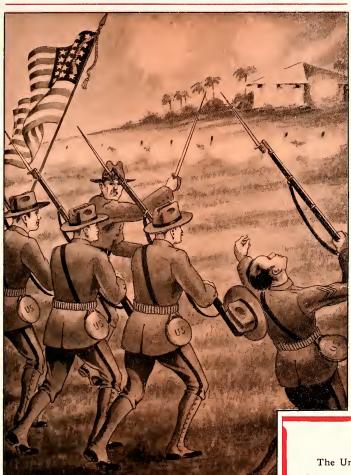

The Varsity members of the team are: Smoak, P. L., Captain; Harbolt, Manager; Tindal, Nelson, and Cothran. The freshmen who complete the squad are: Turtlelott, Leonard, Furman, Warren, and Babh.

These dances are famous in Charleston and its vicinity on account of their frequency, and the pleasure that they afford the Cadets and their friends. This committee not only has charge of all Mess Halls. but also supervises all other dances, formal and informal, that are given at The Citadel. This year the Standing Hop Committee added a touch of formality to these heretofore strictly informal dances by establishing a receiving line which each person was required to go down when entering and leaving the dance. Many other new rules were also put into effect, and added to the pleasure of these dances. Greg MacLeod and his Citadel Bull Dogs played for these dances and are to be complimented on their good music.

As there was no Thanksgiving Hop this year the Christmas Hop was the inaugural Hop of the social season, and it was truly worth waiting for. Freshmen, in all their borrowed glory, had the opportunity of meeting the fair damsels of "The City by the Sea," and were given their first real glimpse of the social life of The Citadel. The Bull Dogs, in their formal début, proved to be one of the best dance orchestras in the South. Alumni Hall, beautifully decorated, truly bespoke the spirit of the season, and every one full of yuletide spirit, helped to make this dance one that will always live in our memories.

SPONSORS' TEA DANCE

The Sponsors' Tea Dance, given by the Sponsors of the various organizations at The Citadel, was danced on the Saturday afternoon following the Senior Hop. Miss Agnes Nicholes, Regimental Sponsor, nobly superintended the work of her assistants and everything was carried out, even to the smallest details, in true feminine style. It is appalling what these girls can do when they make up their minds! Tommy Tucker and his famous orchestra was again heard at this dance, and also at the Mess Hall that followed.

SPHINX DANCES

BAIDEN, Chairman

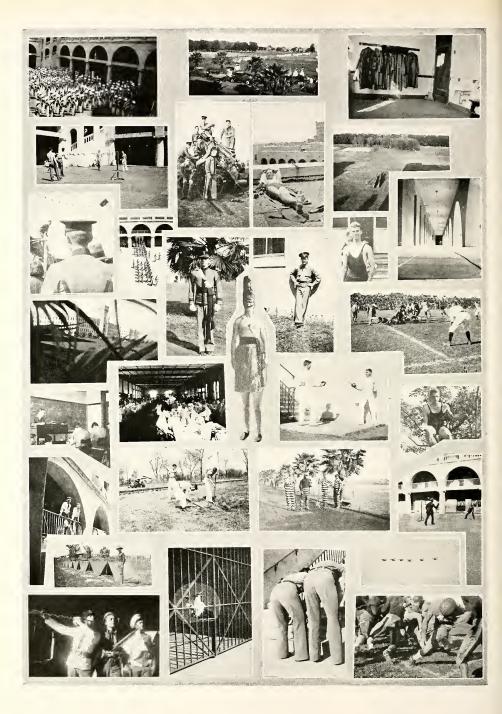

These dances were given from time to time in place of the regular bimonthly Mess Halls, and were always looked forward to with much anticipation. As they were generally given on Friday night, the attendance was similar to that at a regular Hop. They were held under the auspices of the annual, and for that publication. The dances were as all Citadel dances, and nothing better can be said of any dance anywhere.

In Appreciation

A man who is straightforward, candid, and tireless in his efforts to help any member of the Corps of Cadets; who has proven himself always patient in listening to the troubles of hop committees, canteen stewards, Bull Dog and SPHINX workers, and all cadet activity committees; who has backed Citadel athletic teams with all the force of his personality and his energy; who has constantly striven to make even and pleasant the relations between cadets and civilians and between cadets and the military authorities; and who, above all, has given himself wholly to the support of the ideal of a "Greater Citadel" in every respect. Such a man have we seen in our Director of Cadet Affairs, Captain David S. McAlister.

The Y. M. C. A. at The Citadel constitutes a very important phase in cadet life. The Cabinet, which has for its head Mr. J. M. Leland, is composed of cadets who are various members of the evangelical churches and who have taken active part in the religious activities during their stay at The Citadel. The supervision of the association is exercised by an Advisory Board of six members of the Faculty, chosen by the Cabinet.

Throughout the year a series of religious services, consisting of morning watches and Sunday night Bible classes were carried out successfully under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. Certificates are awarded each year to cadets attending all Bible classes and the percentage this year shows a great advancement over previous years.

The Y. M. C. A. at The Citadel has a fourfold objective as follows:

- 1. To lead men to faith in God through Jesus Christ.
- 2. To lead them into the membership and service of the Christian church.
- 3. To develop the Christian character especially through Bible study and prayer.
- To challenge them to devote themselves to make the will of God effective in human society.

Cadet Committee

The Cadet Committee, whose relinquishing correction and control of the members of the Freshman class by punishment in the manner of tours succeeds in destroying those wayward habits and the over-confident attitude of the average high school graduate surrounding him with a foundation of manhood and ideal habits to build on.

The Cadet Committee is composed of those cadets selected by the Commandant of Cadets for their high standard of character and excellent leadership. This body usually consists of the Regimental Commander, the Regimental Executive Officer, the Battalion Commanders, the Company Commanders, a First Sergeant from each Battalion, and the Sergeant Major of the Second Battalion.

These men deal leniently with the first offenses of a Freshman or other cadet who violates Cadet Regulations and Customs, but punish severely those cadets who can not be corrected and who habitually disregard the rules of the corps of cadets.

EXECUTIVE BOARD: Cadets Elliott, MacLeod. Gane, C. N. Rice, R. F. Smith, Zobel, Hammond, Hitt.

DIRECTORS: Captain C. F. Myers and Richard J. Voight.

MEMBERS: Allen, Anderson, Black, Brady, Cashman, Causey, Clark, Clay, Cleveland, Cole, Corcoran, Corpening, J. H. Elliott, R. E. Elliott, Fant, Fonvielle, Gane, Hammond, Heymeyer, Hitt.

Fant, Fonvielle, Gane, Hammond, Heymeyer, Hitt-Houck, Kennedy, Ladson, Lathan, Lewis, Little-john, MacLeod, Moye, Parler, Patterson, Rhame, Stevenson. Thorpe. Walden, Welborn. West, White, Whiting, Williams, Zimmerman. Zobel. With Captain Meyers as the energetic manager, and with Mr. Voight waving the wand of harmony, The Citadel Glee Club of 1932-33 forged ahead to ring up a most successful season. Captain Meyers and Mr. Voight labored ardently to perfect the group and with the Bull Dog orchestra as a foundation, succeeded in "filling the air with music."

Practice began early in October and the club made its first appearance on home ground when it rendered a mixed program in Alumni Hall. December 9, followed by a dance. The next night the members expounded themselves on the ether over WCSC and met with static success. Returning from Christmas furlouse, he sonseters due their cleast in the footlights. success. Returning from Christmas furlough, the songsters dug their cleats in the footlights, battling the depressing elements for bigger and better productions. The group was fortunate in receiving invitations to dances, suppers, banquets, as well as singing in various local churches.

What might be called the apex of the Glee Club's career, loomed on the horizon in midspring. By careful deduction, the directors succeeded in choosing a first string organization, consisting of some thirty would-be Carusos, to make the week's tour over the state. Presentations were given in several cities and rival institutions, where the members reaped the harvests of success and appreciation.

The Bull Dogs

Hats off! one and all to that peppy and entertaining group of musicians comprising the 1933 Bull Dog Orchestra. who, in spite of various difficulties, came through with flying colors to present to their listeners music of the type which well deserved the many compliments accorded it.

The Bull Dogs, under the capable leadership of a nucleus of a few men into a highly efficient body of syncopators, worthy of rendering the music a maybody's dance." The Bull Dogs furnished the music for the Christmas and Easter Hops, and only the most favorable of comments could be heard in regard to both of these delightful events. They furnished the music for the informal dances, namely, the Messhalls and the Sphinx dances. Among their patrons are listed such organizations as the Charleston-Citadel Club, the Bachelors Club, the "?" Club, and others. It is not always that they play only at home, for they have wandered from their native heath into such vicinities as Bamberg, Barnwell, Augusta. Georgetown, and other places—playing for dances and always ringing up for themselves a creditable name. The repertoire consists of over 300 pieces—dreamy waltzes, enchanting medleys, peppy fox-trots, skits—in fact, all the qualities that any orchestra boasts of. A noteworthy thing that the orchestra is doing is that it is contributing 10 per cent of the proceeds of their dances to the McKinney Memorial Band Fund, which was established this year.

The orchestra consists of the following: Carl Hemeyer, Bill Gane and Sam (the great lover) Corpening, forming the sax team; Freddie (golden-glint) Smith and Jim West, trumpets; Herb Allen, drums; Dan Rice, from up Lancaster way, bass; "Si" Moye, doing his sliding tricks on the trombone; "Hon" Causey, who, it is reputed, has a great way with the fairer sex, tapping the ivories: and last but far from least is Greg MacLeod, that snappy little fellow who strums his way into the hearts of many by "playing on his old banjo."

This band of musicians is, in the opinion of the writer, the best that The Citadel has had to offer during the time that he has been annexed to said institution, and it merits the praise given it for the "digging" which the members have given to make it a band of which we may well be proud. Sam Corpening will be the leader next year, and I feel certain that he will produce an orchestra well worthy of bearing the name of "Bull Dogs." So, once again, Hats off!—to the 1933 Bull Dogs—they are of the best.

The Round Table, the literary fraternity of the college, has the distinction of being the only organization at The Citadel having for its purpose the study of things of a cultural nature. It was founded in 1928 as the result of the efforts of Licutenant Lyon, who has since that time been active in its work. Major L. S. LeTellier has acted as faculty advisor for the 1932-1933 Round Table. The membership is limited and its constituents chosen for their interest and ability in things cultural and literary and for their industry and scholastic achievements. In the informal bi-monthly meetings, in which both cadets and faculty members take part, this group discusses affairs of current interest, including social, political, scientific, religious, and literary topics.

At the first of October a meeting was called for all those cadets interested in firing on the small bore rifle team. About forty cadets responded and during the meeting Powell, Reed and Austin were elected captain, manager and coach, respectively.

Under the excellent supervision of Captain McGee the members of the team have greatly improved in shooting during the year. Powell has been the outstanding man and he has never failed to set an excellent example for his team.

Intercollegiate telegraphic matches were fired with Western Maryland College, North Carolina State College, Texas A. and M.. Montana State College, Presbyterian College, University of Minnesota, Lehigh University, Connecticut Agricultural College, Washington University, University of Tennessee.

Board in Control of Athletics

The Board in Control of Athletics was conceived and organized this year. It governs all athletics at The Citadel, principally controlling the finances of all sports. The Board consists of two members of the faculty and one Cadet appointed by the President, the Director of Cadet Affairs who is secretary of the Board and an ex-officio member, the President of the association of graduates, one member of the association of graduates elected by the Executive Committee of the association of graduates, and one member elected at the annual meeting of the association of graduates. The Chairman of the Board is elected by the Board. The members of the Board are: Colonel Bond, Colonel Lang, chairman, Cadet Jennings, Alec Brown, president of the association of graduates, F. P. Sessions, Jack W. Simons and Captain McAllister, secretary of the Board.

This committee has authority subject to the approval of the President and the Board of Visitors, and is charged with the responsibility of managing and directing athletics.

Through the able direction of this Board the expenses of athletics have been reduced to half of that of last year. The athletic deficit has been done away with principally by the Board's efforts, and much credit is due the members for their striving efforts in enabling the sports of The Citadel to keep on their high standards.

ATTENTION, CADETS!

Cadets, we ask as you come to this page that closes our 1933 Annual, that you give this section first consideration, because you are looking at the names of concerns that made our 1933 Sphinx possible. When on leave, visit and help them—they will appreciate it.

What is an annual?

- ... to some . . . just another printing order.
- ... to us an opportunity to record history in its making . . . for an annual is a history of the school for the year in which it is published.

It is made today for its value tomorrow, to bring back to mind the happy memories of school days.

And with a keen appreciation of this future value, coupled with the experience of more than thirty years, we work closely with, and for, the school that the annual may be a complete, interesting history.

It may be next term . . . or a few years away in college . . . but when your thoughts turn to the publication of an annual may we have the opportunity of telling you more of the service we can render.

of precision and highest efficiency is main--tained in all things at the Citadel.—including the engravings used in their Annual,

Acknowledgment

Our task is completed! We have strived, sacrificed, and have endeavored to do our best in publishing this year-book and only without the help of many it would have been impossible to publish the 1933 SPHINX. So to the Corps of Cadets we extend our appreciation for its coöperation and tolerance. In addition, we wish to send our thanks to whom it is due:

To General Summerall and the faculty for their support;

To Messrs. Cates, Boyer, Hutchins and Crichton, of The Observer Printing House, Inc., for their tolerance, splendid service, and kindness;

To Mr. Mitchell, who made our art work possible. To Mr. Burdette, of The Charleston Engraving Company, for his cooperation, kindness, personal interest, and splendid service;

To Misses Dawson, of The Marion Studio, for many favors and excellent portrait work;

To Frederick March for the selection of THE SPHINX beauty section;

To Mr. Howard Jacobs for the excellent photography and support;

To the staff of the Kingsport Press for the beautiful cover;

To our advertisers who have helped to make this book possible:

To any one who has contributed to the success of this book.
